Art and the First World War: Global to Local

A series of lectures in partnership with
Leeds Art Gallery and the University of Leeds

➤ British Artists & the First World War, with Richard Cork

Leeds Art Gallery, Tues 7 Oct, 6pm - 7pm, Adults/Talk

Join us for the first in this series of lectures exploring art in the First World War. This talk led by Richard Cork, an award-winning art critic, broadcaster and curator, will explore the many outstanding British artists that made immensely powerful work about the First World War.

➤ Henry Moore's First War

Leeds Art Gallery, Tues 4 Nov, 6pm - 7pm, Adults/Talk

The second instalment of the 'Art and the First World War: Global to Local' series will look at Henry Moore and the First World War.

➤ Herbert Read and the Experience of the First World War, with Ben Read

Leeds Art Gallery, Tues 2 Dec, 6pm - 7pm, Adults/Talk

Ben Read will offer insights into the war-time experiences of his father, the eminent art and literary critic, Sir Herbert Read. Drawing on the family archive, Ben Read will present unpublished drawings made by Herbert Read as a soldier during the First World War. He will also comment on how the conditions of war affected Herbert Read's international relations and came to influence his later work and career.

Further talks are scheduled on the dates below, with speakers such as Sue Malvern, Tom Steele, Anne C Brook and Juliet MacDonald. Please refer to our website for further details.
